

One stop for affordable housing

August 10, 2021

A new online tool will make it easier and faster for Albertans to find affordable housing that meets their personal needs and budget.

The Find Housing online tool is now live to help Albertans locate and apply for affordable housing. The tool guides potential applicants through the process of evaluating their eligibility, and connects them with providers and housing options for their individual situations.

Created with the input of current tenants, housing operators, and social service agencies, the tool will provide information previously spread across numerous sources and streamline the application process.

The tool can also be used by family members, nonprofit organizations, and social service agencies to help others access housing information and affordable housing solutions.

The Find Housing online tool reflects the Government of Alberta's commitment to address the Affordable Housing Review Panel's recommendations and transform the affordable housing system. Based on its advice, the government is working to clearly define its role, tap into community expertise, expand partnerships, reward innovation, and simplify the affordable housing system.

Quick facts

- Albertans seeking affordable housing options can find the tool at: <https://findhousing.alberta.ca/>.
- The Affordable Housing Review Panel's final report identified a clear need to redefine the government's role, tap into community expertise, expand partnerships, reward innovation and simplify the system. Alberta's government accepted all 19 of the panel's recommendations.
- The panel identified a clear need to simplify administration and make it easier for Albertans to access affordable housing.
- More than 110,000 Albertans (nearly 2.5 per cent) live in more than 57,000 government-subsidized housing units.
- Today, more than 24,000 eligible households are on waitlists for affordable housing programs, a number that has doubled in a decade.

Related information

- Get help with housing
- Affordable Housing Review Panel
- Making it easier to find affordable housing

Multimedia

- Video: Find Housing online tool

Media inquiries

Natalie Tomczak

780-587-8187

Press Secretary, Seniors and Housing